Equality Policy

Introduction
UK Coaching’s Equality Policy, supported by the Equality Action Plan and the Diversity Action Plan, provides a combined statement on how we proactively value and promote equality and diversity in all that we do through the support we provide to our partners, customers and as an employer. The policy addresses equality based on the nine protected characteristics covering age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex and sexual orientation (Equality Act 2010).

Background
Research continually indicates that inequalities persist in many aspects of sport and physical recreation, including participation, membership, governance, coaching and leadership. At UK Coaching, we recognise that the lack of diversity in sport extends to coaching, and that there currently exists a lack of confidence and awareness from coaches about including people from many communities currently under-represented in society. This policy provides a platform for us to ensure all people have equitable access to employment, facilities, services, resources and programmes provided by us.

We are committed to challenging inequitable approaches and behaviours and promoting diversity among our workforce. We aim to create a working environment that supports all our staff, and ensures they feel respected and encouraged to develop. Our aim is that our workforce will be truly representative of the communities from which it is drawn. The purpose of this policy is to document our commitment to providing equality and fairness for all.

We endeavour to promote diversity in our design and delivery of services, products and resources, as well as in our employment practices, to ensure we understand and meet everyone’s individual needs. This means, where required, we will take steps to ensure our services are accessible and our working environments are inclusive.

The glossary of key terms used in this policy is provided in Appendix A.

UK Coaching Equality Policy Glossary of Terms

Age
Refers to a person belonging to a particular age (for example 32 years old) or range of ages (for example 18 to 30 year old). Age discrimination includes treating someone less favourably for reasons relating to their age (whether young or old).

Alternative format
Media formats that are accessible to people with specific impairments; for example, Braille, audio description, subtitles and Easy Read.

Bullying
A series of repeated incidents or a pattern of behaviour that is meant to intimidate, offend, degrade or humiliate a particular person or a group of people. It may involve actions or comments that could hurt a person physically or psychologically. It often acts to isolate the person.

Cyber-bullying
Where the Internet and related technologies are used to harm other people in a deliberate, repeated and hostile manner.

Different needs
Refers to the different requirements that people with protected characteristics may have, which either must or should be met to provide equality, including equality of opportunity and access.

Disability
A physical or mental impairment that has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on a person’s ability to carry out normal day-to-day activities.

Disabled person
Someone who has a physical or mental impairment that has a substantial and long-term adverse effect on their ability to carry out normal day-to-day activities.

Discriminating directly or indirectly
Refers to discrimination because of a person’s protected characteristic (direct); or discrimination that occurs when a provision, criteria or practice is applied that creates disproportionate disadvantage for a person with a protected characteristic compared to those who do not share that characteristic (indirect).

Diversity
Understanding, recognising, respecting and valuing differences. These differences must not be ridiculed or discriminated against.

Duty to make reasonable adjustments
Where a disabled person is at a substantial disadvantage in comparison with people who are not disabled, there is a duty to take reasonable steps to remove that disadvantage by (i) changing provisions, criteria or practices; (ii) making physical changes to the premises; or (iii) providing auxiliary aids.
Equal opportunities
Within the employment context, treating people as individuals and providing them with opportunities on the basis of their skills, talents and qualifications so that they are neither disadvantaged nor denied access on the grounds of their age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, sexual orientation.

Equality
The state of being equal – treating individuals equally, which is not necessarily the same as treating them the same. In some cases, the need for equality may require unequal effort to ensure that the principle of equality is achieved.

Equity
The quality of being fair or impartial towards all concerned.

Ethics
The systematic application of moral rules, principles, values and norms.

Gender reassignment
The process of transitioning from one gender to another. Gender Identity refers to the way an individual identifies with their own gender, for example, as being either a man or a woman, or in some cases being neither, which can be different from a person's biological sex.

Harassment
Unwanted behaviour that has the purpose or effect of violating a person’s dignity or that creates a degrading, humiliating, hostile, intimidating or offensive environment. See below for sexual harassment.

Physical barrier
A physical feature of a building or premises that places disabled people at a substantial disadvantage compared to non-disabled people when accessing goods, facilities, services or employment.

Positive action
A range of lawful actions that seeks to overcome or minimise disadvantages (eg in employment opportunities) that people who share a protected characteristic have experienced, or to meet their different needs.

Positive discrimination
Treating someone with a protected characteristic more favourably to counteract the effects of past discrimination. The duty to make reasonable adjustments is an exception where treating a disabled person more favourably may be required by law. Positive discrimination is unlawful, and employers are asked to take positive action against this.

Prejudice
Negative, irrational feelings, attitudes and opinions that people have about other people. It suggests prejudging or forming an opinion about other people without any prior knowledge of them.
Protected characteristics
The grounds on which discrimination is unlawful. The characteristics are: age; disability; gender reassignment; marriage and civil partnership; pregnancy and maternity; race; religion or belief; sex; and sexual orientation.

Sexual harassment
Any conduct of a sexual nature that is unwanted by the recipient, including verbal, non-verbal and physical behaviours, and that violates the victim’s dignity, or creates an intimidating, hostile, degrading or offensive environment for them.

Social inclusion
A process of tackling needs, generally for communities that are, or have been, excluded from services and opportunities to which the majority of the community has access. Social inclusion is often used to describe places where there are excluded communities and where there is a need for actions that bring opportunities to these excluded people. It is often used in the context of opportunities in education, housing, economic prosperity, health, employment and in community safety and crime reduction, and in community facilities (arts, sport, culture and community venues and services) and transport.

Stereotyping
The process of labelling people because they are members of a particular visible group or developing a standardised image of a person or group, whereby it is assumed that they must also share particular traits that are considered characteristic of that group.

Transsexual person
A person who has the protected characteristic of gender reassignment. This may be a woman who has transitioned or is transitioning to be a man, or a man who has transitioned or is transitioning to be a woman. The law does not require a person to undergo a medical procedure to be recognised as a transsexual.

Victimisation
Treating someone badly or subjecting them to a detriment because they have complained about discrimination or helped someone who has been the victim of discrimination.

Equality Act
The Equality Act 2010 is the main, overarching anti-discrimination law which UK Coaching is required to follow to help ensure that equality of opportunity is promoted across various groups and that diversity is at the heart of all that we do.

The Public Sector Equality Duty
The Equality Act requires that UK Coaching in carrying out its functions has due regard to the need to:
- Eliminate unlawful discrimination, harassment and victimisation
- Advance equality of opportunity between people who share a Protected Characteristic and those who do not
- Foster good relations between people who share a Protected Characteristic and those who do not.

This means that we must go further than merely ensuring a person in a particular instance is not treated less favourably on the basis of their Protected Characteristic. The Public Sector Equality Duty requires us to consider the impact of our strategies, business plans, policies, procedures and key decisions on equality and the removal of discrimination in these areas. It also requires us to take steps to meet the needs of people from protected groups where these are different from the needs of other people and requires us to encourage people from protected groups to participate in public life or in other activities where their participation is disproportionately low. In some cases we may need to treat some people more favourably than others in order to comply with the Public Sector Equality Duty.

Equality Standard for Sport
The Equality Standard: A Framework for Sport (the Standard) was launched by the UK sports councils in November 2004 to help address the inequalities that exist within the sports sector. It is a framework to guide sports organisations, including: governing bodies of sport, county sports partnerships (CSPs), sports councils and national sports organisations towards achieving equality.

Through the development of robust action plans, the Standard is a vehicle for widening access and increasing the participation and involvement in sport and physical activity by under-represented individuals, groups and communities. The Standard supports sports organisations to develop and implement equality-proofed policies and practices.
